

A Cautionary Tale for Infidel Sex Workers in Australia: Avoid Muslim Customers

A rather sordid little tale that appeared earlier this month in the ABC and the Canberra Times. First, the ABC report, as per Tom Lowrey.

‘Canberra Man Charged With Rape of Sex Worker Says Brother Is To Blame’.

‘Lawyers for a Canberra man (that is: ‘A Canberra-resident Muslim man’ – CM) charged with threatening and raping a sex worker have told the ACT Magistrates Court it was a case of mistaken identity, and his brother is to blame.

Gee, see how these Muslims love each other.. One bro pointing the finger at another. – CM

‘Mohammad Alabbasi, 20, was arrested at his home in Kaleen and faces five charges including robbery, detaining a person, and rape.

‘He has been refused bail by Chief Magistrate Lorraine Walker.

‘According to a police statement of facts, the alleged victim arranged over the phone to meet with a man at an apartment within the Astin Apartments on Northbourne Avenue on Tuesday afternoon.

‘The man had booked a half-hour session, and identified himself as “Ali”.

‘Shortly after the woman let him inside the apartment, he produced a box cutter, threatened her, and demanded cash.

It would be interesting to know the exact substance of the threats – I would assume threatening to slit throat or behead – and the amount of cash demanded. – CM

'The alleged victim pleaded with the man that she had no money, and ran for the door, but he slammed it shut before she could escape.

'The man told the victim, "Well, let's just have sex then", and proceeded to rape the woman before leaving.

Mohammedans do not keep 'deals' that they make with Infidels.

The 'deal' between a prostitute and her customer is that she provides sexual services and he, having received those services, hands over an agreed-upon sum of money. This Mohammedan made a verbal agreement then trapped and threatened the woman, demanded that she hand him money, and then used her for sex, against her will, without paying her. He is a thief, a fraud and a liar as well as a rapist. And in all of that he is a small-scale replica of the 6th century warlord, caravan robber, slave-trader, treaty-breaker and rapist whose name he bears. – CM

'The woman immediately contacted a friend, who then contacted police.

'Police traced the mobile number used to make the original booking to Alabbasi, and attended his Kaleen address on Wednesday night.

'He was charged with attempted aggravated robbery, forcible confinement, two counts of sexual assault without consent, and sexual assault in the third degree.

And every item on that charge sheet is something that was done by the original so-called 'prophet' Mohammed, the warlord, caravan-robber, rapist and slave-trader whom all pious Muslims are taught to view as an excellent example of conduct. – CM

‘Police also seized clothing at his home, matching that worn by the man described by the victim.

‘Alabbasi’s lawyer told the court that his client claimed he drove his brother to and from the Northbourne Avenue address.

*‘During questioning from prosecutors, Constable Benjamin Stewart told the court both Alabbasi and his brother were suspects in a similar incident in March.

Hmmm. So they have ‘form’. Question: what of the forensics? Even if the rapist used a condom, surely there should be fingerprints and/ or traces of DNA left at the crime scene, sufficient to determine which of the two mohammedan thugs did the deed. – CM

*‘He [Constable Stewart] said the victim from that offence was planning to leave the ACT due to concerns for her welfare.

In other words, the Brothers Alabbasi and/ or other members of the Mohammadan Mob have been making threats? – CM ‘Alabbasi will be back in court on May 18’.

Thus much, the ABC. And now for Megan Gorrey of the ‘Canberra Times’, with rather more detail.

‘Kaleen Man Charged With Raping, Threatening Sex Worker Denied Bail’.

‘A Kaleen man, who allegedly threatened a sex worker with a box cutter, before repeatedly raping her in an inner city apartment, has been denied bail.

‘Mohammed Alabbasi, 20, claimed his brother had committed the alleged attack on the woman after he borrowed the phone to arrange a meeting with a sex worker earlier this week.

What does the brother say? Neither this report nor the ABC report tell us what the brother says or said on the subject. – CM

'Alabbasi did not enter pleas to two charges of sexual intercourse without consent, third degree sexual assault, unlawful confinement, and attempted aggravated robbery using force, when he fronted the ACT Magistrates Court on Thursday.

'Court documents said the female sex worker was working from an apartment in Braddon when she received a phone call from a man, who identified himself as "Ali" (hmmm; is an "Ali" the Mohammedan equivalent of what western prostitutes refer to as a "john"? – CM), requesting a half an hour service on Tuesday.

'The pair met in the apartment block's foyer before they went back to the woman's room, where she briefly asked him about payment before he abruptly said he needed to wash his hands.

'When he emerged from the bathroom a few minutes later, the woman told him the appointment would cost $350 and he started searching through his pockets.

'She then noticed he did not have his wallet on him.

'The man then allegedly pulled a box cutter from his pocket and waved the blade in the woman's face as he repeatedly demanded cash (what amount? – CM) and said, "Just give me the money and I'll go".

'The woman managed to escape and run to the apartment door, before the man allegedly slammed the door shut, blocked it (locked it? – CM) and pushed the woman into a wall.

'As he held her there he continued to wave the box cutter in her face, demanding money before he said, "Well, let's just have sex then.”

‘Court documents said the man then raped her, and the woman later told police she was hyperventilating and felt dizzy and nauseous.

‘She pretended to faint, so the man would leave, but he told her to “keep going”, court documents said. He sexually assaulted her twice more before he left the apartment.

‘The woman immediately phoned a friend, who reported the incident to police.

‘She provided police with a description of the alleged offender and later underwent a medical examination.

‘Police searched Alabbasi’s home on Wednesday and seized a mobile phone that matched the number in the woman’s phone. In an interview with police, Alabbasi admitted the phone was his, but said his brother had borrowed it on Tuesday to look for a prostitute using the website Cracker.

‘He said his brother had exchanged texts with a woman and the defendant had waited in the car while his brother went to meet her at a Braddon apartment.

Now, where is this brother? What is the brother’s story? Bear in mind the little item from the ABC report in which one of the cops notes that Alabbasi and his brother are suspects in a similar attack on a prostitute that took place in March. – CM

‘Alabbasi was arrested on Wednesday and his Legal Aid duty lawyer applied for bail.

‘The court heard he was a recent immigrant and on a bridging visa.

So: he doesn’t have Aussie citizenship! Thanks be for small mercies. Can somebody please explain to me why a man like this should be even considered for a permanent residency, let alone citizenship, in future? This man and his brother are now implicated in two rather nasty, grubby, sneaky attacks on Aussie 'working girls'. Do we need the likes of this Alabbasi? We have plenty of common-or-garden crooks of our own, already; we don't need to boost their numbers by importing those who are not merely crooks but belong to an entire cult devoted to the slavish adulation and emulation of a mass-murdering rapist, slave-trader and warlord.

'He had family ties in the ACT, where he had lived for a couple of years.

I don't care two pins for his 'family ties'. The brother, to repeat, is a suspect in a previous crime of similar nature.

We don't need people like this. We don't want them. We shouldn't be required to admit them in the first place, or to keep them once they've got in through the gate. Gates open both ways. Deport! Deport! Deport! Surely there would be forensic evidence – dna, hair, clothing fibres, fingerprints – that can nail this bastard; jail him for the maximum period set down by law for the offences with which he has been charged, then, sentence served, return him to wherever it was in the Dar al Islam that he came from in the first place. His brother, too. If the rest of the family don't like the idea of being separated from him, they can leave, too. – CM

'Chief Magistrate Lorraine Walker said she was not concerned that the defendant would fail to appear in court if bail was granted.

I would be. Mohammedans don't keep agreements with infidels. But on the other hand, if he were to "flit" all the way back to the Dar al Islam, that would be, all things considered, a good outcome, so long as he never returned. – CM

'But she was concerned about the serious nature of the alleged offences, and the strength of the evidence before the court.

'She acknowledge Alabbasi's claims that his brother was the offender, but his phone linked him to the incident.

'Ms Walker denied bail.

'The case returns to court later this month".

Meanwhile, one hopes that word will be spread quickly amongst the ladies of negotiable affection, in Canberra, and elsewhere; stick to Infidel customers. Mohammedans will very probably lie, cheat, threaten, and take the goods without payment. – CM
