

A Professor's Wild Journey From Marxist To Free Market Libertarian

Podcast here.

An interview with former NYU professor Michael Rectenwald. He is an author of several books including, "Springtime For Snowflakes: Social Justice And It's Postmodern Parentage". We discuss his wild journey from an avowed Marxist to a free market libertarian and the subsequent fallout when he defected from the ideologically homogenous blob that made up his peer group within the university system. We get into post modernism, post structuralism, social justice warrior ideology and the other philosophies that poison modern leftism and the modern university campuses.