

A Suggestion for Nikki Haley

by Hugh Fitzgerald

It was here.

Possibly Nikki Haley can deliver a speech at the U.N. about the misuse of Elle Lively McBroom's Instagram photograph, showing side-by-side both photos of her, under two different names, on a giant screen set up before the General Assembly for maximum impact. Ambassador Haley, having made her point, might then go further, and offer a dozen different examples of various kinds of fauxtography practiced in the past on behalf of the "Palestinians," not just by Hamas in Gaza, but also by Hezbollah in Lebanon during the 2006 war. It would be quite a lesson, both startling and salutary, for the U.N. delegates, and for much of the world outside the kangaroo court of the U.N., that has been swallowing this malevolent stuff for far too long.

First published in