

Algerian still in UK after SEVEN YEARS despite trying to poison Brit shoppers with his own faeces – after legal battle which cost £250,000

The sub heading from the MailOnline: 'This government puts the rights of the British public before those of criminals, and foreign nationals who abuse our hospitality by committing crimes in the UK should be in no doubt of our determination to deport them.'

Well-rated comments include: Why is he not being charged with terrorist offence for making an Useing biological weapons, because that's what happened ! ? !

I cannot see why a person who was trying to poison our people has not yet been deported. Too PC , too soft,
