

An Apostate – Berber, From The Kabyle – On The West's Endless Gullibility And Stupidity

Stupidity, cupidity, timidity, gullibility – there may be more – it's the Esdrujula Explanation for the behavior of Western non-Muslims, in refusing to see what is right in front of them, every day in every way, and about which I posted many years ago.

A Berber apostate (Kabyle stands in for Berber), presumably living in the mental freedom and relative physical safety of France, notes the absurd behavior of a West whose inhabitants are still willing to misunderstand Islam, and to believe the explanations given by those whose job it is to protect Islam and its adherents, until such time as they can no longer be dislodged from that West, but are on their way to triumph over it

Here.