

Anti-terror police called into Imam murder investigation after haul of ISIS material is found

So this is not a racist murder by an Englishman outraged at the rape of little English girls. I thought it might be a domestic squabble over a dowry or a divorce. But it is getting very interesting. From the Rochdale On-line

Terror police are investigating if Qari Jalal Uddin was murdered because he tried to stop youngsters from being radicalised, it has been revealed. Greater Manchester Police confirmed today (Monday 7 March) that the investigation has deepened after ISIS-connected material was found during a raid last week.

It is being considered that Mr Uddin was targeted because he had made efforts to discourage the youngsters from turning to radical Islam.

Detectives investigating the death raided three properties last week, and so far three people have been arrested.

But the discovery of material connected to the so-called Islamic State terror group prompted Greater Manchester Police to call in counter terrorism experts, who are now leading the inquiry. Detectives are now examining the material, which includes digital media thought to have been found on computers or smartphones.

Mr Uddin, 64, was attacked as he walked through a children's park last month. He was taken to hospital but died later. Mr Uddin had been to evening prayers at the Bilal Jamia Masjid

Mohammed Hussain Syeedy, 21, of Ramsay Street, Rochdale, has been charged with murder and conspiracy to commit murder. A 17-year-old and 21-year-old have also been arrested in connection with the attack.
