

Arabic Billboard Battle in Michigan

A super-PAC calling itself the "Cards Against Humanity has tried to hurt the Trump campaign by placing what they consider to be humorous and disparaging billboards around the country.

The Committee's goals are to get out the vote, and to create media-friendly Trump stories that scare his opponents to the polls and dishearten and disillusion his supporters.

They must have thought this one was especially clever.

The billboard says 'Donald Trump can't read this, but he is scared of it' in Arabic

According to WJ Newsradio 950 that her group chose Dearborn because of its large Arab-American population. "We intentionally did not put the translation on the board," she said. "I like the idea of people who do not speak Arabic having to ask their friends who do... to translate the board for them.”

Harris added that the group hopes to motivate the Arab-American community to vote in the upcoming election, particularly in Michigan which is a swing state.

The Nuisance Committee didn't expect an answer from the
