

Letter from the Managing Editor

Welcome back to New English Review!

It is with great pleasure that we relaunch the monthly magazine. We retain the same dedication to intellectual and artistic exploration that has, for years, brought readers to these pages from across the globe. New English Review celebrates and encourages discourse on issues that are universally interesting, important, and timely.

You will find here fascinating and valuable articles of merit, as well as poetry and fiction that explore vistas of the soul.

We thank all of our many readers who have been with us along the journey through the years and, to our newest readers, we say, "Welcome!"

Kendra Mallock