Even now, in the midst of steadily escalating violence against Jews, supporters of the so-called Road Map refuse to understand the core origins of Palestinian terrorism against Israel. Projecting their own very generic conceptions of Western history upon the contemporary Middle East, these supporters of “peace” are still imprisoned within standard explanatory frameworks of economic disenchantment and rising expectations. Clinging stubbornly to what they had first learned in Political Science 101, they ignore what is already right before their eyes; explicit, stark, and thoroughly unambiguous:

Palestinian terrorism is ultimately a conscious and current expression of primal blood sacrifice, the blood of “The Jews.” For these terrorists, violence against “The Jews” is always an expression of what must be held sacred. more>>>
