

England Lionesses Euro Champions.

It's a wonderful feeling this morning. But, while money will provide better facilities and more opportunities for young girls to play and train, please don't let the women's game get bought and destroyed by big business like some aspects of the men's game.

This celebration is joy – sheer schoolgirl (despite some of the players being in their 30s) enthusiasm and a touch of mischief. Sarina Wiegman is a lady, and she reminds me of my old headmistress.

Well done Lionesses xxxx
