

Gerard Larcher: In France Religions (That Is, Islam) Must Yield To The Laws Of The Laic State

Here.

And much more, from Ivan Rioufol, on what Larcher – the President of the French Senate – has done in his report, to address directly the well-founded fears of those who do not feel that their country, their only country, the country of France, not “the Republic” but France, in which each French person holds a life estate, is not being defended sufficiently by those who, like Sarkozy, exhibit inadequate understanding of France, and wish only to uphold “Republican” values.
