

Harry Truman had a sign on his desk “The buck stops here”

By Willian Corden

“The President—~~whoever he is~~—has to decide. He can’t pass the buck to anybody. No one else can do the deciding for him. That’s his job.

With the current democratic administration, the buck doesn't even get to the President's desk, it's cut and dried before he sees it.

One thing that comes through with Donald Trump's campaign is that he is the one who calls the shots, he's the boss and he makes the decisions.

Voters should remember, you need a boss to get things done.
