

Is Emhoff Disrupting the Democrat's 'Year of the Woman'?

By Roger L Simon

According to the NYPost, "Doug Emhoff does not deny he struck ex-girlfriend while brushing off report as a 'distraction' in response to allegations".

Which means, en anglais, he dunnit.

The so-called Second Gentleman spoke this easily-translatable lawyer-ese on MSNBC's Morning Joe, a show on which plagiarists are celebrated, where Mr. Emhoff could have said just about anything he wanted without fear of being questioned, as long as it tilted pro-Democrat.

The problem was that too many knew the truth. He could find himself in big legal trouble, especially if Trump wins and he is not shielded.

That abuse event at the Cannes Film Festival was just the tip of the Emhoff sexist iceberg if one believes even a smidgen of what the Daily Mail and others have reported about the lawyers repellent behavior toward women at his Century City law firm.

Beyond that is the undisputed information that Atty. Emhoff cheated on his first wife with their children's nanny, who also taught at the kid's fancy private school, secretly making her pregnant in the nauseating tradition of Arnold Schwarzenegger.

The MSM has been largely silent about this, but if this had been about Donald Trump or anyone close to him it would be getting more attention than aliens invading Earth.

The reason for this mafia-like omerta is obvious because fraught questions lurk behind the Second Gentleman's behavior.

What did Kamala Harris know about this and when did she know it? What did she know, specifically, when they got married? And while we're at it, what does she think about that behavior now, since the Second Gentleman could well become the First Gentleman?

This is a woman who claims she became a prosecutor because of a friend's story of abuse. They also have been parading their "wonderful, blended family" as an example to all of us.

Some example!

Hypocrisy does not encompass this but it's a start.

Needless to say none of the above questions were asked by Mr. and Mrs. Former Trump Idolators, incredible as that now seems, turned severe TDS sufferers, who dominate morning's on MSNBC.

Meanwhile, Barack Obama compounded the Dems female hypocrisy problem by accusing a Detroit gathering of black men of not "feeling" voting for a woman president, even if black (or black-ish). Pretty insulting of the former-or current, if that's the way you view it-president.

It's just possible "the brothers," as he patronizingly put it, weren't "feeling" this particular woman and for good reason. I wonder if he does himself or just wants to hold onto power from the basement as he has told us he does.

Of course, as Obama well knows, the Democrat Party lives and dies by identity politics. The minute people start thinking for themselves, they're done. This year, for them, "it's the women, stupid." Please ignore the possibility the woman herself is stupid.

As I type, it is almost Yom Kippur, the Jewish day of atonement. Second Gentleman Emhoff, it would seem, has a lot to atone for. I have read that for these High Holy Days we are not to think badly of or hate our fellow Jews. I will try in his case, but it will be a lot easier if come the new year he is not anywhere near the White House.

Since they are not fellow Jews, not all of them anyway, I will think badly of, actually despise

CBS THE AWFUL PRAVDA WANNABE

The powers that be at the CBS network not only hate Jews—having just decreed Jerusalem is not part of Israel—they also have contempt for every American, that is contempt for every American who believes slicing up and completely reconstructing a "60 Minutes" interview with a presidential candidate to make her look semi-coherent is the proper role of a serious news organization.

Moreover, CBS clearly has a protected class. Thou shalt not ask a serious question of CRT-loving author Ta-Nehisi Coates, as the National Review points out in "The Obscene Public Humiliation Ritual of CBS's Tony Dokoupil." (I won't go into my own opinion of Coates at this point.)

CBS is literally going out of its mind at the possibility of Donald Trump returning to the presidency. One motivation for this is that the network's seemingly-perpetual licenses could be revoked. With Trump up in the polls they have reason for their fear. But, like a child having a tantrum, in reaction they are doing everything possible to make that result a reality.

As for their “Jerusalem not Israel” proclamation or whatever it is, thankfully the Yom Kippur boots on the ground at the Kotel/Western Wall are making CBS’s executives seem like the disgusting, antisemitic bigots that they are.

To those of you who are joining me in this annual exercise at which I have failed more times than I would care to admit, have an easy fast. The year ahead will be good, for Jew and gentile alike.
