AN attacker has reportedly been caught carrying a huge blade at a vigil for victims of the Nice terror attack.

Cops are said to have pounced on the man who one witness reported was carrying a "machete".

Buzzfeed reporter Ryan Broderick said a crowd, many of whom were crying, were yelling at the attacker as he was bundled into a police car.

Vigils are being held tonight in Nice and across France in memory of for more than 80 killed and 200 injured after a terrorist drove a lorry into a crowded street and then open fired.

84 people have been killed and 100 more injured in the southern French city of Nice after a lorry was 'deliberately driven' into a crowd celebrating Bastille Day in a confirmed terrorist attack.

France, a nation which lost 130 people to the November Paris attacks and endured the Charlie Hebdo atrocity last January, mourns yet again.

The arrest comes nearly 24 hours after French-Tunisian Mohamed Lahouaiej Bouhlel ploughed a truck into hundreds of people celebrating Bastille Day in Nice
