

March Of Lycee Students In Support Of Freedom Of Expression

A student in a lycee wrote, last January, in support of Charlie-Hebdo. For his pains he received seven death threats from Muslims, some of those missives apparently containing – ah! le bon billet de Castres! had nothing in common with them – bullets by way of additional Muslim menace. Now there's been a rally, in support of this student who now must study at home, by fellow lyceens.

Story here.