

Muslims Gloat at Paris Kosher Market

From Le Monde Juif which provided screenshots.

In the caption of the photos posted by user “Abdellah du Futur” reads vile messages such as “Charlie’s a mother (expletive).” The statement is a reference to the “Je suis Charlie” (I am Charlie) campaign of support after Islamist terrorists murdered 12 at the satire magazine Charlie Hebdo for making cartoons of Mohammed, founder of Islam, two days before the supermarket attack.

Another caption reads in French “Allahu Akbar ratatatata ahhhh,” mimicking the shouts of Allah is Greater shouted by Muslim terrorists, the sounds of gunfire and the victims’ cries of pain.

One of the photos also included hashtags referencing anti-Semitic French comic Dieudonne M’bala M’bala, who was detained after identifying with the terrorist Coulibaly, Al-Qaeda mastermind Osama Bin-Laden, and Mohammed Merah, who in 2012 murdered three Jewish children and a rabbi at a Jewish school in Toulouse, along with three police officers.

The representative Council of French Jewish Institutions (CRIF), the umbrella organization of all French Jewish organizations, strongly condemned the outrageous photos, reporting them.

Insults in bad taste are not bullets, but it is indicative of the boys attitude, which were they to be given a gun . . .
