

New English Review Turns Sweet Sixteen

by Rebecca Bynum

Yes, today is our 16th anniversary. One hundred and ninety-three issues and tens of thousands of blog posts later, we're still going strong. I want to take this opportunity to thank all our contributors who toil to give us the very best articles, stories and poetry to be found on the internet. I want to thank our exceptional managing editor, Kendra Mallock; Esmerelda Weatherwax, who manages our London office; our intrepid proof-reader, Lori Price; our board members and senior editors, Theodore Dalrymple, Jerry Gordon and Ibn Warraq; contributing editors Norman Berdichevsky, Kenneth Francis, Murphy Donovan, Robert Gear, Samuel Hux, Geoffrey Clarfield, and Jeff Plude. I also want to thank all our book authors who have made NER Press such a success, Michael Rectenwald, Theodore Dalrymple, Phyllis Chesler, Kenneth Francis, Norman Berdichevsky, Emmet Scott, Jerry Gordon, Kenneth Hanson, David P. Gontar, J. E. G. Dixon, J. B. Kelly, Ibn Warraq, Moshe Dann, James Como, Peter McLoughlin, Eric Rozenman, Paul Oakley, Elisabeth Sabaditsch-Wolff, Manda Zand Ervin, Albert Norton, Jr., Bahis Sedq, and Timothy H. Ives.

Mostly, I want to thank our many donors who have just made it possible for us to continue this marvelous journey together.