

Rouhani Demands All Sanctions Be Lifted At The Same Time

Here.

Will Kerry immediately reply, as he should, that that was not agreed-upon, that cannot be, and the Iranians know that full well, and if they keep insisting on this its the end of the “framework”? Or is there some reason why he can't say that – for example, if he thinks they are right, and he just doesn't want it said?

It should be the end of the road for this product of dilettantes (see Wendy Sherman), ill-prepared to deal both with the science involved (and bringing in the personable Ernest Moniz for the last few weeks was not sufficient– why wasn't someone like Olli Heinonen, with long experience at the IAEA, and long familiarity with Iran's record of evasion, present for the negotiations for the last year or two?), and with the masters of smiling manipulation and deception that the Iranians, not surprisingly, have proved themselves, yet again, to be.
