

Sajid Javid says he 'won't hesitate to block return' of teenage Isis bride Shamima Begum to UK

From the Guardian, and Times

Sajid Javid has said he 'will not hesitate' to stop Shamima Begum, who left the UK to join Isis, from returning to the UK. The Home Secretary said he would use powers available to him to prevent Ms Begum from coming back to Britain, and warned that she faced a criminal investigation if she did manage to come back.

He said: " We must remember that those who left Britain to join Daesh were full of hate for our country. My message is clear. If you have supported terrorist organisations abroad I will not hesitate to prevent your return. If you do manage to return you should be ready to be questioned, investigated and potentially prosecuted."

Security Minister Ben Wallace also warned that runaways who now want to come back must realise that "actions have consequences".