

Saudi Crown Prince Makes Clear the Reconciliation with Qatar Comes at a Price

by Hugh Fitzgerald

Just after the signing of the reconciliation agreement by Saudi Arabia and Qatar, a meeting of the Gulf Cooperation Council was held including – for the first time in three years – representatives of Doha. The Saudi Crown Prince opened the meeting by reminding everyone that Iran was the chief threat to the members of the GCC. There was no objection from Qatar. The report on MBS’s opening remarks at the GCC are here: “Eyeing Gulf Detente, Saudi Arabia Opens Summit With Call to Counter Iran Threat,” Jihad Watch.
