

Second EDL March on Parliament against terrorism.

To London again.

Today three groups were going to be in London on the matter of terrorist attacks. A new group, known as the Football Lads Alliance, or more formally Unite Against Extremism were to be marching from St Paul's Cathedral to London Bridge to pay respects to those killed there. The EDL had arranged to march on parliament again to protest against terrorist attacks and demand better action from the Government to prevent such. And the UAF, (Unite against Facism)were intending to counter protest, as they do, because they can't see that their way of life is the one most under threat. More about that later.

The police imposed strict condidtions