Silencing the Past

by Joe David (September 2015)

Exactly one hundred years ago several million Christians were brutally murdered. Among those were about 250,000 to 300,000 Assyrians. According to a statement by the Earl of Listow in 1933, the Ottoman Turks, while cleansing Turkey of religious impurities, wiped out almost two-thirds of the Assyrian Christian population. No one knows how many Christians were totally martyred during World War I — and no one probably ever will. more>>>
