

Speculation that ISIS executioner 'could be Walthamstow jihadi' – child identified as son of Lewisham convert

Walthamstow yet again. From the Boy in new Isil execution video is son of Grace Dare, from Lewisham, who wants to be first woman to behead a hostage.

When I grow up I want to be a jihadist like Uncle Dhar

The toddler, wearing camouflage and a black headscarf with an Isil logo on it, is Isa Dare, the son of jihadi bride Grace “Khadija” Dare from Lewisham, south-east London. Her father Henry Dare confirmed to The Telegraph that his grandson was the boy in the Isil video.

Last July Grace Dare posted a picture on social media of Isa, whose name is an Arabic form of Jesus, aiming an AK-47 automatic rifle that he seemed only just big enough to lift.

Dare, 22, who was brought up in a Christian family of Nigerian descent, is understood to have been radicalised online, then began attending the Lewisham Islamic Centre, where Drummer Rigby’s murderers Michael Adebolajo and Michael Adebowale are reported to have worshipped.