

Teacher who told pupils Islam was 'true religion' and Christians 'ignorant' guilty of misconduct

From the delivering a playground sermon during Islamic Friday prayers at Golden Hillock School in Sparkhill in around June 2013.

He could now face a lifetime ban from the classroom following the ruling on Wednesday, January 6.

Mr Haruf is one of 13 teachers from four Birmingham schools linked to the so-called Trojan Horse plot accused of professional misconduct by the National College for Teaching & Leadership.

He is set to be sanctioned at a later date by education secretary Nicky Morgan. He could be banned from teaching indefinitely.