That Explosion at the Weapons Factory in Israel

by Hugh Fitzgerald

An explosion at an Israeli weapons factory has given the Iranians cause for celebration. It's unclear if their gloating reflects a belief that the Israelis themselves were responsible for a destructive accident or, rather, the hope that Iranian saboteurs were responsible, as a response to the explosion at Natanz a few weeks ago that has been universally attributed to Israel. A report on the malicious mafficking in Iran is here: "Iran media celebrates 'explosion' at 'sensitive Israel missile factory,'" by Seth J. Frantzman, Jihad Watch.
