

The Predictable Perfidy Of Obama

by Brian of London

Yesterday I pointed out how hidden 2003 Obama speech at an anti-Israel event would display similar thinking.

Caroline Glick again:

It is not surprising that Obama is carrying out the final act of his presidency at the UN. Obama has made no attempt to hide his desire to eliminate America's independence of action. By elevating the post of UN ambassador to a cabinet level position at the outset of his presidency, Obama signaled his conviction that this corrupt institution is the equal of the US government.

This early signal was transformed into an open policy when Obama used the Security Council as a means to bypass the US Senate in implementing his nuclear deal with Iran.

Then he put the known Israel hater, Samantha Power, in that position. The Obama supporters cry now that Obama has done something unpredictable or, worse, Obama was incompetent. It is clear to me he had a plan all along and has executed it perfectly.

We can only hope Israel and the West can recover from his nuclear deal with Iran and his direct perfidy against Israel. Right now I'm hoping that we have reached something akin to what Churchill termed "the darkest hour" and the only way to go from here is for America to recover from this terrible affliction.

First published in .