

The Truth About That 'Arab Boy In Jaffa Burned By Israelis'

by Hugh Fitzgerald

Did you hear about the two Jewish boys who threw a Molotov cocktail into an Arab house in Jaffa, severely burning a 12-year-old Arab boy? Of course you did, if you were in Israel, where that news was all over the place and many mea-culpas, mea-maxima-culpas, were uttered by Israelis in a state of shock and grief. Hundreds of Arabs came out in Jaffa on Saturday to demonstrate against this atrocity "committed by Israelis." And outside of Israel, you were dutifully informed by the major media that Jews had firebombed an Arab family's house, severely burning a young boy. Had you watched NBC News, or been reading its online news, you would have come across Here is an initial Jihad Watch report on the incident, and here is additional information: "Police: Two Israeli-Arabs behind arson attack that severely burned 12-year-old boy in Jaffa," Jihad Watch.