

Thirty Taliban fighters killed after explosion at bomb-making class in Afghan mosque

From the Khaama Press, the largest English news service for Afghanistan

A group of Taliban fighters who were taking part in a bomb-making class have died in an explosion at a mosque in Afghanistan.

The 209th Shaheen Corps said in a statement on Saturday that 30 Taliban fighters including six foreign nationals who were expert mine makers had been killed in a bomb explosion this morning.

According to the statement, bodies of the six Taliban affiliated foreign nationals could not be identified because of the blast.

The incident is reported to have taken place when a group of Taliban militants gathered at a mosque in the village of Quldaq in Dowlatabad district of Balkh province.

209 Shaheen Corps قول اردوی 209 شاہین

February 13 at 7:59 AM · 🌐

In a mosque in Balkh, 30 Taliban were killed in an explosion of their mine.

1399 the 25th of the 25th of the 25th

30 Taliban have been killed in a mine explosion in Balkh province for 9:25 minutes.

The incident was so powerful that the faces of foreign citizens were not recognizable.

The incident happened in Dolatabad district of Balkh when the Taliban were busy learning about mining.

As a result, 30 terrorists were killed by Taliban.

#د۰۹شاہین_قول_اردو

⚙️ · See original · Rate this translation

A separate blast in Afghanistan claimed the lives of two children. (They) died when an IED planted by the Taliban exploded in Qotar Blaq village in Kunduz province, security officials reported.