

Three Groups Seek to Ram Through Radical Agenda

by Conrad Black

A reader-friend of mine from the deep South who is an authentic intellectual and has earned his income as a doctor of research in physics with eminent employers including the Pentagon and high academia, and relates culturally to the popular contemporary South, and is without discernible ethnic or regional prejudices, recently wrote me the following fulmination: “The NY DC Press has got together via electronic communication, and is now executing a blame-Trump, praise-Biden strategy. What this actually demonstrates is that Red China could attack Taiwan, kill everyone, loot and occupy it, and Biden’s press kook would give a press conference on masks for kindergartners.

“Biden started his alleged statements to the press by rambling about socialist legislation, then imitating Detective Columbo by saying ‘Oh, just one more thing. I’m abandoning the hostages next Tuesday,’ demonstrating the gang rape of Lady Truth by the Democratic collective. It’s as though Afghanistan was a drought in California, or a brush fire outside of San Diego.

“We cannot coexist with the New York and California worldview. Infanticide, kinky/really kinky sex, deindustrialization, anti-white racism, brownouts, uncontrolled fires, crumbling infrastructure, junkies on every street corner, shoplifting normalized, public health tyranny, and world record physical/moral/political cowardice cannot be imposed on the non psychotic, non diabolical, parts of the country. It will not be tolerated.

“The Republicans have nothing to do with it. The Democrats can nurse off the Chamber of Commerce, military industrial complex, Chinese subornation, but their sick, greed-obsessed narcissism is wearing thin in the hinterlands. If more Americans are killed via Biden’s negligent homicide, a good third of the population is never going to forget it.

“[Those] waiting for their next Biden unemployment check, and the hoped for flood of 50 million third world peasants, are going to immolate on a funeral pyre of inflation well before George Soros, Bill Gates, Warren Buffett, Jeff Bezos, and Mark Zuckerberg buy what’s left of the country for 5 cents on the dollar.”

A Coalition Rules

This screed has the distinct air of a “cri de Coeur” and can be slightly diluted in its fervor to allow for the heat of the moment of utterance. But it is a cogent and understandable outburst from a highly intelligent, experienced’ patriotic, and observant man.

The United States is now in the position, unprecedented in its history, of being led by a coalition of socialists, of evocators and spokespeople for a corrosive national guilt and shame over the original sin of slavery, and of fierce and unscrupulous partisans trying to alter the nature of federal elections and presidential election vote-counting.

Such vote rigging, coupled to simply opening the southern borders to whomever wishes to enter the United States and permitting them to vote by virtue of residency rather than citizenship, will, this coalition hopes, prevent the horrible aberration of a return to the White House of Donald Trump or anyone remotely like him (or any Republican for a long time).

None of these three distinct but somewhat overlapping groups, nor all of them together, remotely represent a majority of Americans. Yet each of the three groups is determined to take advantage of the fleeting moment when the Democrats' control, albeit narrowly, of both houses of the Congress, and the White House, albeit with a rather inattentive president. The result is that the United States is careening towards the legislation of measures that the country disapproves and which will prove, if adopted, severely baneful to the national interest.

The Sanders-Ocasio Cortez left of the Democrats will never have an opportunity like this again to jam through high taxes, big spending, a full anti-capitalist agenda with a mighty turn to supposedly egalitarian financial redistribution.

The militant African-Americans and the significant but chronically minority number of conscientious white Americans who believe that their country has been inadequately punished and humiliated for the wickedness of the institution of slavery, its implicit preservation in the Constitution, and the terrible war provoked and conducted by the minority of Americans who approved of slaveholding. (Mr. Lincoln judged the Civil War a chastisement of the Almighty that was "true and righteous altogether").

More representative is the mere entirety of Democrats, joined on this issue by a substantial number of Republicans, who were so horrified at Donald Trump, both as a public personality and as someone who successfully stormed the bipartisan post-Reagan Washington governing elite's redoubt and frightened its occupants out of their wits with the blood-curdling cry of "Drain the swamp!"

Biden's Restraint Needed

Even with these three groups standing on each other's shoulders and barely squeaking through the House of Representatives and the Senate, nothing like as radical a program would require consideration were it not for the fact that the president, Epoch Times.
