

Tommy Robinson: 13 suspects arrested over disorder by 'Muslim Defence League' at election rally

It's only taken Greater Manchester Police six months to track these men down and arrest them. They had clear photographs from the press. They had alert officers on the spot, who even escorted some of the Muslim men who protested on public transport from Yorkshire to Manchester. I know that it doesn't follow that those Muslim men escorted to the protest were the exact same Muslim men who committed the assaults, but I bet they know and associate with the men who did. They had facebook posts boasting of the damage caused. If the police make all the arrests they should, then CPS says they can be charged, then get it to court, half the defendants will have absconded and the witnesses will be accused of not remembering events after passage of time.

From the Manchester Evening News. Readers might remember the link to the gallery of people the police want to speak to. The