Hacking somebody else's wifi is obviously wrong. An offence under all sorts of electronic and communication legislation. Probably old school criminal or malicious damage as well. But presenting factual, historical MSM news reports is NOT Islamophobia. And the police and establishment do themselves no favours screaming that.

A man has been arrested after London's biggest train stations had their Wi-Fi networks hacked by a cyber-attack displaying Islamophobic messages, police said.

Officers are investigating after the attack on internet services at 19 stations across the UK managed by the Network Rail.

On Thursday evening, the British Transport Police said a male employee of Global Reach, the company that provides wifi services to Network Rail, had been arrested on suspicion of offences under the Computer Misuse Act 1990 and the Malicious Communications Act 1988. I said there would be something involving communications and malice.

A spokesperson (of BTP) said: "Officers received reports just after 5pm yesterday of a breach of some Network Rail wifi services at railway stations which were displaying Islamophobic messaging. The abuse of access was restricted to the defacement of the splash pages, and no personal data is known to have been affected."

People logging onto the Wi-Fi saw a webpage containing details of terrorist incidents in the UK and abroad.

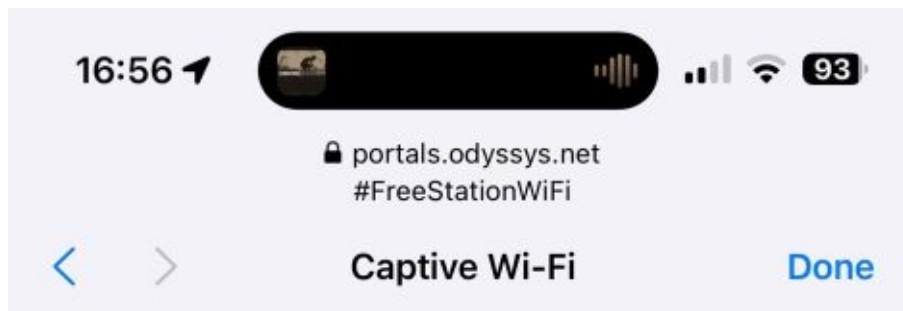

Piccadilly was one of 20 stations where the internet service was targeted in the "'cyber security incident" last night (Wednesday). Other stations targeted by the hack include Birmingham New Street, Glasgow Central, Leeds City, Liverpool Lime Street, Bristol Temple Meads, Edinburgh Waverley, Reading, and Guildford.

In a statement issued to the Manchester Evening News, Telent said: "We are aware of the cyber security incident affecting the public Wi-Fi at Network Rail's managed stations and are investigating with Network Rail and other stakeholders. "We have been informed there is an ongoing investigation by the British Transport Police into this incident, so it would not be appropriate to comment further at this stage."

The MEN have published a censored copy of the offending message.

We love you, Europe.

The Islamisation of Europe is already happening, and it's getting worse each day.

Below is a just a SMALL taste of what's coming.

The Manchester Arena bombing, or Manchester Arena attack, was an Islamic terrorist suicide bombing of the Manchester Arena in Manchester, England, on 22 May 2017, following a concert by American pop singer Ariana Grande. Perpetrated by Islamic extremist Salman Abedi and aided by his brother, Hashem Abedi, the bombing occurred at 10:31 p.m. and killed 22 people, injured 1,017, and destroyed the arena's foyer. It was the deadliest act of terrorism and the first suicide bombing in the United Kingdom since the 7 July 2005 London bombings.

The 7 July 2005 London bombings, also referred to as 7/7, were a series of four co-ordinated suicide attacks carried out by Islamist terrorists that Repeating MSM factual news is NOT Islamophobia.

If the truth hurts, wailing about hurt feelings won't change a thing.
