

Trier: death toll now five, but the killer seems not to have a political/religious motive

Not every attack these days has a political terrorist motive, be it Jihadist, IRA, Tamil Tigers or any of the others. Except, this originated as a jihadist MO, suitable for countries where gun laws made the acquisition and deployment of firearms difficult. Once it became 'commonplace' now it can be copied by men like Bernd W, an individual with serious flaws in his background. Now I am reminded not of Berlin or Barcelona but Hungerford and Dunblane.

From the German Focus magazine says the man often got drunk in the local doner stall.

The suspected amok driver was living in the vehicle in the days leading up to the day, which would later become his deadly weapon. The 51-year-old had not had a fixed residential address. There was also no evidence of close relatives. . . . described as a