

Twitter accounts hacked by 'Turkish government supporters' – with anti-Dutch messages

From Financial Times

Twitter accounts, including that of Amnesty International, have been hacked by a group claiming to support the Turkish government. The hack resulted in the accounts sending tweets condemning "Nazi Germany" and "Nazi Holland" and spreading propaganda relating to a Turkish referendum that aims to give new sweeping powers to the president.

The tweets, which began with a swastika, linked to a YouTube video entitled: "Nazi Germany, Nazi Holland, see you April 16",

The hackers tweeted out the same Turkish message comparing the Dutch to the Nazis, and changed some of the users' profile pictures to an image of the Turkish flag and Ottoman Empire coat of arms. Other accounts hacked included ones belonging to Unicef USA, the Atlanta Police Department, Stockholm University's English-language account was among those compromised in the attack. "The tweet was quickly detected and deleted," the press office wrote in a statement on Wednesday morning.