

Whining's what they do

By William Corden

It's just about 2 months now since the indestructible Donald Trump won the election, routing that airheaded, useless opponent who hasn't had a mention since.

You would think, wouldn't you, that the mega-media corps would have changed their tune just a little bit to reflect the will of the people? Maybe soften their attacks or show some shamefacedness as to how wrong they were?

Not a chance!

Mika Brzezinski (l) and Joe Scarborough (r) host 'Morning Joe' on MSNBC.

Those two charlatans on Morning Joe, whatisface and his wife Perplexski, still rant on at every single move by our man, emboldened by the fact that their asses haven't been fired from the joint (yet).

Same with the other permanently juvenile hostile outlets.

There's no "Let's give em a chance" (which is the essence of democracy) in their mindsets, only a continuation of throwing rocks at whomever they disagree with.

Not a single one has apologized for their disgraceful lying, distorting and withholding the truth, so they carry on as usual, hurling vitriol and dividing the country.

As the title says "Whining is what they do!"

There's got to come a day when the execs of these corporations are called to account. Maybe it will be a banker calling in their loans or maybe it will be some sort of parthenogenesis that sprouts even handed debate. Who knows?

I know who I'd be giving immediate walking papers to if I was in charge.
